Times Article Brings Results

Mrs. Frances Lewis, chairman of a special dog food label project for the Junior Woman's Club reports that an article published in the Times-Virginian during the summer has helped the club a great deal.

The article mentioned that the club saves "Vet's" dog food labels, and about a large number which she collected at the Martin Kraus farm near Concord. Since that time Mrs. Lewis has heard from a Times subscriber in Colorado Springs, Colorado, Miss Nancy Harvey, who mailed her a large envelope of labels. Several telephone calls and offers from here in town have swelled the club total to well over 1300.

All these labels will help some blind person receive a "seeing eye" dog through special arrangements with the "Vet's" company.

Now Mrs. Lewis is hoping that other subscribers will assist in collecting not only the labels but also cancelled U. S. Commemorative stamps and foreign issues, as well. The stamps are sent to Veterans in U. S. hospitals, another Junior Woman's Club project.

AUNT IDA MORRIS, TIMES CORRESPONDENT
Celebrated Her 90th Birthday At Home

Celebrates 90th Birthday

by Martha Stimpson

On Wednesday, September 5, Mrs. Ida Morris, long - time correspondent for the Times-Virginian, celebrated her 90th birthday. Members of her Sunday School class plus relatives and other friends gathered to celebrate "Aunt Ida", as she is affectionately called, has spent 88 years in Appomattox County.

"Home" for all these years has been her family place, the "Harvey" farm about two miles northeast of Vera on Route 24. Originally, this house was a wayside inn located on the old stagecoach road. From the inn the stagecoach ran to Old Appomattox Courthouse. And there at the Courthouse was the law office of Mrs. Morris' uncle, now reconstructed as the small frame building next to the old postoffice, with the sign "John Woodson, Attorney."

In the 1930's the new highway was constructed and the house was rearranged to make the living quarters face the new highway.

But in the old days a wayside inn was set up each ten miles or so in order to change horses. Much of this original inn is still intact. Original window facings, wide floor boards, and a handsome fireplace and mantlepiece mark her home as an authentic memorial to building methods and planning of two hundred years ago.

Several years ago, when Williamsburg was being reconstructed, architects and historians came out to Mrs. Morris' home to make exact measurements of the living room fireplace and to check with her on other items in and around her home. The fireplace was reproduced in the Governor's Mansion at Williamsburg because it is exactly like the original first built there.

Home Grown

When "Aunt Ida" was young, and even more so in the days of her parents, colored help on the farm did a great deal of the work. There are still at the old place, bedspreads entirely handmade from cotton grown, seeded, spun, and woven right on the spot.

She recalls stories about the War Between the States, and mentioned that her father, a soldier, only "stole" once in his life. She said that he became so hungry one day he lifted two eggs from a farmer's hen house and ate them raw right then and there. And her mother, she recalls, had the first "cookstove" in the county, and was the envy of her neighbors who had only fireplaces and iron pots and skillets on which to cook.

"Aunt Ida" has always had good health. She enjoys good eyesight and can read well without glasses. Each week she mails her column about Vera townspeople and happenings in the mailbox at the end of the lane. Each column usually contains a verse of Scripture, for "Aunt Ida" is a daily reader of the Bible, and a long - time member of the New Hope Baptist Church, at Vera.

At least 47 nieces and nephews, great nieces and great-nephews claim kin to this much-loved journalist. And if "Aunt Ida's best for journalism is transmitted to these young people, the Times - Virginian will never lack for devoted and skilled correspondents. Happy Birthday, "Aunt Ida" — May Health and Happiness be yours for each birthday to come!
